ing at the First Presbyterian church; the Circles of the Auxiliary will meet at the church proper at 3 o'clock for a short business meeting and Bible study, after which, Mrs. Ross will speak on Missionary Work in Mexico. The hostesses for the afternoon will be Mrs. Roy Johnson, Mrs. Frank Ward, Mrs. Randolph Crutchfield, Mrs. A. A. Hogue, Mrs. Courtney White and Miss Lucy Hanna. The ladies of the Auxiliary of Fulton, Washington, Columbus and Prescott will be guests. The ladies of the Auxiliary will be glad to have any others who desire to come.

The November meeting of the United Daughters of the Confederacy was held yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Wilbur Jones in Ozan, with Mesdames Chas. Locke, Lee, Stone, E. Barrow and John Barrow of Ozan as associate hostesses. The beautiful weather combined with the pleasant drive on the highway lined with gorgeously colored trees and shrubs assisted in making this one of the most enthusiastic and interesting meetings in the history of the chapter. The hospitable home of Mrs. Jones was bright and cheery with a profusion of lovely flowers and the guests were cordially greeted by the different hostesses, assisted by Mrs. R. L. Harmon a valued former worker with the Pat Cleburne chapter in this city. Mrs. R. T. White, chapter president presided over the business period, at which time the various standing committees reported, and Miss Maggie Bell the corresponding secretary read a very interesting letter from the son of a Confederate soldier describing the battle near Cedar Gap called "Fairchild's Massacre." Responses to the roll call were facts and tributes to the boy martyr, David Owen Dodd. Mrs. Jones the leader for the afternoon opened her program with a description of the skirmishes fought in and around Hempstead county, followed by Mrs. W. E. Briant who read a paper of unusual interest on the Indian Trails of Arkansas. Miss Mary Carrigan, read a paper of historic value on "Our Confederate Dead" giving the names of the "Hempstead County Rifles" a company organized at Washington in the beginning of the war between the states. Mrs. George Spraggins gave an account of her visit to the State convention recently held in Helena, followed by Mrs.

White who gave a talk on the high lights of the convention, with Mesdames J. A. Henry and Charles Haynes who were delegates from the Pat Cleburne Chapter, adding their observations and pleasures of the convention. Mrs. Lowthorp, former state historian, and who was unanimously elected second state vice president at this convention, gave a most interesting talk on the closing day of the convention and outlined a part of her work for the coming year. During the social hour, the hostesses assisted by Mrs. Harmon served a most tempting salad and sandwich plate with coffee.

Mr. and Mrs. R. T. White had as dinner guest last evening, Senator Lake of DeQueen.

The Week of Prayer services by the Woman's Missionary Society of the First Methodist church, will begin Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock each succeeding afternoon the service will begin at 3 o'clock.

Mrs. R. M. LaGrone left yesterday for a visit with Mr. and Mrs. Surrey Gilliam in El Dorado.

Circle No. 5 of the Woman's Missionary Society of the First Methodist church met at the home of Mrs. R. F. Briant with Mesdames Shanks, Chas. Westerman and Claude Waddle as associate hostesses. The rooms were beautifully decorated with lovely fall flowers. The program was in charge of Mrs. Ira Halliburton. Mrs. P. H. Webb gave a most inspiring devotional, Mrs. Broach offered a prayer. Those assisting Mrs. Halliburton were Miss Mamie Briant, Mrs. C. C. Parker, Mrs. C. E. Pressely, Mrs. Joe Houston and Mrs. Buddin. A beautiful solo was sung by Mrs. John P.

Cox with Mrs. John Welborn at the piano. The meeting was closed with a prayer. During the social hour a delicious salad plate with tea was served to 22 members and one guest.

GREEN—WILSON

The old historic Major Johnson home of Hempstead county near Columbus was the scene of a very quiet and informal wedding at high noon Thursday, November 6, 1930. Dr. Thos. L. Green, father of the groom, using the beautiful ring ceremony united in marriage Mr. James Wilson Green and Miss Aloysie Wilson.

The bride is the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Wilson, having received her education at Lindenwood College, St. Charles, Mo., and the University of Arkansas, being a member of PiBeta Phi sorority. Her gown was a blue chiffon velvet with cap.

responding accessories, her going away suit was a sport ensemble in shades of brown.

The groom is the eldest son of Dr. and Mrs. Thos. L. Green now of Lancaster, Texas, receiving his education at McCallie Military Institute of Chattanooga, Tenn. and Austin College, Sherman, Texas, now connected as salesman with the Indiana Truck company of Oklahoma City.

This marriage forms another link in the chain uniting two of the pioneer families of Hempstead county, the bride being the granddaughter of Major William Johnson, while the groom is the grandson of Major John F. Green and James S. Wilson. The young couple left immediately for points in South Texas, and after November 15th will be at home at 1515 North Western street, Oklahoma City, Okla.

Heart Hungry

by LAURA LOU BROOKMAN
AUTHOR OF "RASH ROMANCE"

© 1930, by NEA SERVICE, INC.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

CELIA MITCHELL, 17, lives with her mother, Mrs. Margaret Mitchell, in a small house in New York. The parents are divorced and Mrs. Mitchell is a widow.

BATNEY SHIELDS, young news editor, who is a friend of Celia's, is a handsome, well-dressed young man. He is a friend of Celia's and is a friend of Celia's.

Although Mitchell forbids Celia to see John, she goes about with the young man frequently. LISA HUNGAN, a girl of Celia's age, becomes her friend. She comes to New York to work for a photographic service and meets Celia. She tells her she has lost her heart to John.

Realization that it is really Shields she loves comes to Celia when she sees him in a picture. She goes to him and tells him she loves him.

Now go on with the story

CELIA did not seem to hear the words. "They don't know where she is!" she cried. "Oh, Mrs. Schultz, how I find my mother? What am I to do?"

The German woman drew her in to the room. "Here—come inside," she said. "Already those De Ries kids are listening at keyholes. The gentleman wants to see you."

Celia crossed the tiny, darkened hallway. She raised her head and looked directly into the sober eyes of John Mitchell.

The girl stood quite still. "What—what do you want?" she demanded. Then before he could answer she rushed to him, threw herself in his arms and sobbed as though her heart would break.

"Celia—my dear—I'm sorry! Don't cry! Celia, you mustn't!" Her weeping grew louder. John Mitchell, distressed, looked about frantically for assistance.

The portly Mrs. Schultz, across the room, nodded her head approvingly. "Let her cry," she said in a low voice. "Soon she'll feel better. It don't hurt her none to cry!"

Mitchell looked singularly out of place in the cheap, cluttered flat. He, too, might have spent a sleepless night. His eyes were worn and there were shadows beneath them.

It was some time before the storm had quieted enough for Celia to speak. Then she glanced up at, struggling to control her voice, gasped, "Mother isn't here! They don't know where she's gone. Oh—either, what can we do?"

"I know," Mitchell said huskily. "I found out when I got here. Dry your eyes now. We'll find her, Celia."

"But how can we find her? She's just—disappeared! Nobody knows anything about it!"

Mitchell nodded reassuringly. "Leave that to me," he said. "I—I've been terribly worried about you, Celia. I want you to know I'm sorry for what I said yesterday. I was hasty. Forgive me, won't you?"

"You mean you don't think all those things you said about me? About—not telling the truth and being a disgrace?"

"Was that what I said? No, of course I didn't mean it. Temper got the better of me—as it has before. Why, I wouldn't make you feel badly for anything in the world, Celia! It's only that you're so precious to me. Do you understand? That's why everything you do means so much, and why I guess I've been too strict. Say you'll forgive me and forget all about it now, won't you?"

Celia agreed.

MITCHELL held his daughter in his arms, comforting her. Mrs. Schultz, who had left them together, but remained close to the bedroom doorway, listening eagerly, had to strain her ears to catch his low-pitched words.

He began to ask questions. Celia told him all she had been able to learn about Mrs. Rogers' disappearance. It was little enough. She recited what the custodian had said and what she had heard at Margot's shop.

"Do you think the woman who runs the place—the one who's out of town—may really know anything?"

"I don't know," Celia admitted. "They were going to give me her address, but I forgot."

"Well, that's a start! Is there a telephone in this place? You might call the shop now and get that address."

Celia jumped up eagerly. Her father was so confident, so self-reliant. It was wonderful to feel that he had taken command and that there was something she could do.

The telephone was a public one, placed in the entrance hall. Celia caught up her purse and hurried out to make the call. In five minutes she was back again with a Toronto address written on a slip of paper.

Her father was talking to Mrs. Schultz when Celia returned. There was nothing in what the custodian told him that Celia had not already heard.

"Is there anyone else in the place—any friend of Mrs. Rogers—who you think might have heard from her?"

Mrs. Schultz shook her head emphatically.

"She don't make friends with nobody!" she said. "She's a good woman, but she don't never make friends with nobody. Just say 'good morning' and 'nice day' and something like that, but she don't tell nobody what she's goin' to do."

"I see." A few more questions and Mitchell turned to the girl. "Don't you think we had better be leaving?" he said. "Mrs. Schultz has been very kind, but we must not impose upon her. Get your things together and I'll order a cab."

Celia went to the bathroom, where she had left her traveling bag. A glance in the indifferent mirror over the dressing table showed her how completely she had forgotten her appearance. The red-rimmed eyes were swollen. Her hair was unkempt and there was a glossy shine on her nose. Even her frock was rumpled.

SHE went to the bathroom and bathed her eyes with cold water. Then she combed her hair, got out cosmetics and used them lightly. Some of the wrinkles in her dress were removed by brushing. But a more presentable figure when she reappeared in the living room.

Mrs. Schultz shook Celia's hand heartily as the goodbyes were said. "You're nice girl and you got a fine papa!" she said. "Some day when your mamma come back you come to see me again, huh?"

"Oh, yes! We'll come!" The girl smiled. Mitchell picked up her traveling bag and they left the house. When they were in the "There, there!" Mitchell inter-town hotel.

"Better have something to eat, hadn't we?" he suggested. "Have you had lunch?"

Celia had not. Her father consulted a railway time table and pointed out a train they could take conveniently. The suggestion roused the girl.

"But father!" she exclaimed, "I can't go back to New York!"

"Why not?"

"Where will I go? I can't stay with Mrs. Parsons any longer. She—she doesn't like me!"

"Nonsense. That's ridiculous!" "Oh, but it isn't! I know she doesn't. She couldn't!"

"Evelyn is very anxious to have you return. She told me so. You must put that notion out of your head."

"But I couldn't after what she said to me!"

"There, there!" Mitchell interrupted. "We won't talk about it. Of course you're going back to New York."

Celia was in no mood for argument. She was tired and weak and eager to believe that everything really would be all right. They reached the hotel and Celia waited while Mitchell dispatched two messages. Then they went into the dining room and ordered a substantial luncheon. Celia was young and now that the emotional crisis of the past 24 hours was ended she discovered she was famished. As they ate her father talked. He asked Celia when she had left New York, how she had spent the evening before, but he made no criticism. Mrs. Parsons had discovered the girl's absence, he said, at 10 o'clock. She had notified him immediately, and there had been several frantic hours of search.

It was finally the doorman (he had gone off duty but was reached by telephone) who gave the word that Celia had taken a cab for Grand Central Station. Mitchell's trip to Baltimore was made on the supposition that the girl had gone to join her mother.

"Don't mind admitting you gave me a scare, Celia," he said. "A bad one!"

"I'm sorry, father."

"Oh, we're going to forget all that now! Put it out of our minds! We've something else to do!"

Celia nodded gravely. They talked of Margaret Rogers. "There's one thing!" the girl burst forth. "I wish I could know she isn't sick. That's what makes me afraid! She wasn't really well, you know. I'm afraid something's happened to make her act so queerly!"

"I've thought of that," Mitchell said. "I'm going to do everything within my power to find her, Celia." He paused, looking across the table at the girl. "We've got to find her!" he finished.

EVELYN PARSONS was reading the telegram in her hand for a second time when the telephone rang. Rose answered and handed the instrument to Mrs. Parsons.

"Hello!"

"Is Miss Mitchell in?"

"No, she's not. This is Evelyn Parsons speaking. Can I take any message?"

"Oh—Mrs. Parsons! I didn't recognize your voice. This is Barney Shields. Do you know where I could reach Celia?"

"What a pity—she's out of town!"

"What did you say?"

"She's out of town. Listen, Mr. Shields. Evelyn's tone was impulsive. 'Celia's left me alone. Why don't you come over and have dinner with me? It would cheer me up immensely.'"

"Oh, thanks—I mean—"

"Please say you'll come!"

"Well, why, yes. I guess I will."

"You dear boy! Shall I expect you at seven?"

"I'll be there."

"Then I'm spared a lonely evening. Goodbye until later."

"Goodbye and thanks."

There was an exultant smile in Evelyn Parsons' eyes as she set down the telephone.

Swiss Plan Air Aid For Lost Alpine Tourists

BERLIN, Nov. 7.—(UP)—Airplane rescue work is to be developed and systematically organized by the Swiss government for the prevention of Alpine fatalities. For this purpose army planes will be employed at certain important points.

Many lives have been lost because it has been impossible to locate missing climbers. Cases have occurred where only persons slightly injured by falls into ravines, have starved to death.

Practice rescue flights carried out have been very successful. The planes locate a lost person, drop first aid equipment and provisions, and sketch the area and drop the sketch on the rescue expedition proceeding on foot.

Persons underweight after the age of 35 generally live longer than those overweight says the Illinois state department of public health.

Portuguese Organize New Political Party

LISBON, Nov. 7.—(UP)—A new political organization has come to life in Portugal, the group calling itself the "Legionnaires of the Nation" modeled more or less on the Fascist manner.

The active director-organizer is Dr. Fernando Pego, a lawyer. For "Patron and Honorary Supreme Chief" the Minister of Justice, Dr. Lopes Fonseca has been named.

The organization's main objects are two-fold: To support the military dictatorship and combat Masonry. As supporters of the government they consider themselves obliged to oppose Free Masonry.

Dr. Pego claims a membership of 3,000 for his organization.

"EVERYTHING TASTED BAD"

Billions Condition Relieved After Arkansas Lady Had Taken Black-Draught.

Fayetteville, Ark.—"I used to suffer from biliousness and spells of indigestion," writes Mrs. Earl Green, 300 South College Street, this city. "I would get up in the morning, feeling nauseated and dull. Everything tasted bad, and it was just like I was looking at the world through blue glasses."

"My father used Black-Draught at home, so he told me to take it. I found it a fine medicine. After I took it, I felt like a different person."

"I got so when I felt a spell coming on I would take Black-Draught first and in this way prevented the bad feeling. I have used it for years for constipation, and it is the best medicine I know of for this trouble."

The great success of this old, well-established medicine has encouraged many imitations to spring up. Don't trifle with counterfeits and questionable substitutes when you can so easily obtain the genuine Theodor's Black-Draught, by always calling for it by name—Theodor's.

Costs only 1 cent a dose. NA-222

OUT OUR WAY

By Williams

now, more than ever before, that in the event of a partial success, he must increase his yields and thus lower costs, that in certain sections there must be diversification, and that with such diversification a greater number of farmers will be launching into newer lines such as dairying, hog, poultry, and field crops, now perhaps to the majority. Even in the plantation section there is considerable discussion and planning for other field crops than cotton, and in some localities, soybeans for oil crushing purposes.

"With all these questions confronting our farmers, made immeasurably more difficult and complicated by the effects of the recent drought, and the period of depression both economical and agricultural, through which we have passed, I do not feel it amiss to draw this matter very especially to the attention of the Quorum Courts throughout the state, feeling very secure in the conviction that such action as may be taken will be based on wise counsel, mature judgment and thorough deliberation."

Bank of Tennessee Ordered Liquidated

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 7.—(AP)—E. D. Robertson, state superintendent of banks, today appointed a receiver for the Bank of Tennessee, a state institution. The Bank of Tennessee never has received deposits from an individual. They were financial agents for Caldwell & Co., a well known insurance and banking firm. Chancellor R. D. Howell, was appointed receiver by Mr. Robertson and a statement was made that the affairs of the bank should be liquidated. The Bank of Tennessee was organized several years ago. At the close of business in May 1930 the resources were given as $15,867,071.87 and the total deposits were $12,370,900.21.

Negro to Grand Jury For Manslaughter

PRESCOTT, Nov. 7.—John Witcher, negro, was held to the grand jury on a charge of manslaughter by Justice of the Peace Carl Munn after a hearing at Willsville Thursday morning. Witcher is held for the death of Frank Pennigo, whom it is alleged he shot and killed on October 28.

Both negroes live on the farm of B. F. Johnson, near the Columbia county line. Testimony showed that during an argument which started over domestic trouble, Pennigo made for his shotgun and that Witcher beat him to it. A partition door was closed by Pennigo and Witcher shot him through it.

Witcher disappeared after the shooting but was later captured by Sam Comer, deputy sheriff, in the southern part of Columbia county.

The negro was given his liberty after he had made bond to appear before the grand jury.

Clark Bank Gives Use of Building to Farmers

GURDON, Ark., Nov. 7.—The Clark County Bank has given the farmers of the county the use of the old potato curing house free, and Bob Clark has been employed by the farmers to have charge of the curing of the potatoes.

It is estimated that it will not cost more than five cents per bushel to cure the potatoes. The plant will take care of 2000 bushels at one time.

Chicago has a department store for every 78,958 persons in the city.

The
asks a favor...

"Give me a chance to do my best work for you. Give me the opportunity you have given my friend, the cake-pan. I can fry food wonderfully good-to-eat, if you'll give me the right things to work with.

"For instance, you use the best ingredients when you make a cake... fresh eggs, rich milk, Snowdrift. But you are likely to use almost anything, even drippings, for frying. Then the frying pan is blamed when you don't like the taste. Whatever you use for frying makes the crust, the best part of fried food. So the crust and the flavor can be only as good as whatever made it. Let me fry with Snowdrift."

Because nothing can be too good to come to your table as the crust of fried food, the Wesson Oil people make Snowdrift of an oil as choice as fine salad oil... free of all animal fats. It's brought to you sealed in air-tight cans, so it keeps fresh and sweet. Snowdrift is pure-white and appetizing when you put it into the frying pan... and it's every bit as pure as it looks.

You know that one of the secrets of good frying is to "fry hot." Many fats smoke and burn before they are hot enough. Snowdrift helps you by heating easily to the right temperature for perfect frying.

Snowdrift is at its lowest price in years.

"Among the propositions that will come up will be that of support of the county agent and home demonstration agricultural work. I entertain a very high regard for those who go to make up the membership in our various Quorum Courts, for the efficient functioning and far-sightedness of these courts, and certainly there is nothing farther from my mind than the temerity of suggesting to any one of these honorable bodies a possible course of action; however, because of the fact that I have given the matter a great deal of earnest thought, I am taking the liberty of emphasizing for their deliberation and consideration, the matter of appropriations through which the all-important work of both the county agent and home demonstration work may be carried forward.

"In my consideration of this matter I have borne in mind the fact that this next year, of all years will see problems facing the farmers of Arkansas, new in scope and aspect; problems that will require a maximum of cooperation and understanding, both practical and financial, and I know of no more comprehensive, helpful and efficient handling of such a situation than through the facilities of the two agencies just mentioned.

"At the outset, the farmer realizes

SOCONY
DEWAXED...PARAFFINE BASE...POURS AT ZERO
MOTOR OIL

lasts 25% to 50% longer

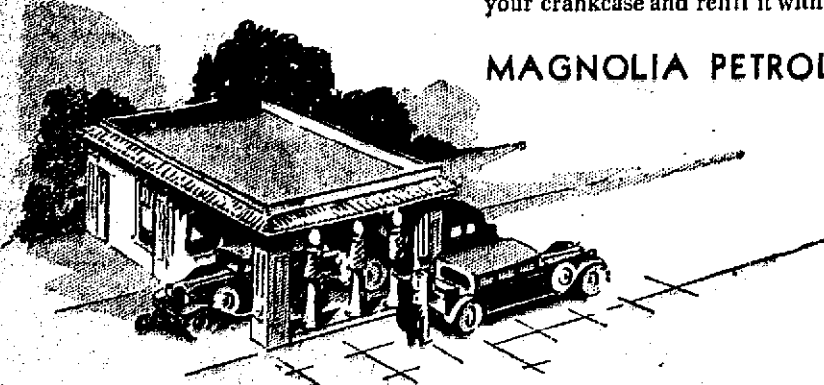

The new Socony Motor Oil will never become water-thin or lose its oiliness...

No other ONE oil equals the new Socony Motor Oil. Under severe punishment the average motor oil becomes thin as water, loses its viscosity or oiliness and has practically no lubricating value. The new Socony Motor Oil maintains a more uniform viscosity at all temperatures than any of the other present day motor oils. DEWAXED... FILTERED and re-filtered, it is ALL oil and lasts longer.

Now, before winter comes, have the Magnolia man drain your crankcase and refill it with the new Socony Motor Oil.
